GAVE AN ADDRESS

TO THE TWENTIETH CENTURY CLUB TUESDAY AFTERNOON.

ON DOMESTIC SCIENCE

Miss Louise Stanley of State University Was the Speaker—A Reception and Tea in Her Honor.

Miss Louise Stanley, head of the department of home economics of the state univers[illegible] lectured before the Twentieth Century club of this city at the Elks' club Tuesday afternoon, as representative of the Missouri Federation of Women's clubs. Her subject was "Conservation of the Home" and was the best and most comprehensive study of the work and teachings of domestic science that has been heard in our city. Miss Stanley has a doctor's degree from Yale university, which she secured last year, and is a woman of broad culture. Her defense of domestic science as an absolutely necessary part of a woman's education and her explanation for the need of such an education was more than interesting. Several women present, among them Miss Hettie Anthony of the domestic science department of the Northwest Normal, who have heard some of the best economists of the country, regard her address on Tuesday as the best they have heard.

At the close of Miss Stanley's address a reception and tea was given in the tea rooms in honor of the speaker.

The officers of the club, Mrs. J. C. Allender, Mrs. T. L. Wadley, Mrs. S. R Beech and Mrs. G. H. Colbert, were in the receiving line in the reception room, to present the guests to Miss Stanley. Mrs. Ferdinand Townsend and Mrs. George P. Bellows presided at the tea table. They were assisted by Mrs. E. G. Orear, Miss Clara Sturm, Miss Helen Leffler, Miss Bertha Beal, Miss Della Grems and Miss Emma Lee Taylor. The table was centered with a large bouquet of lavender and white chrysanthemums, the club colors. Tea, wafers and bonbons were served.

After the departure of Miss Stanley on the Burlington for her home at Columbia, the club held a business session to hear report of the recent district meeting at Trenton by its representative, Mrs. W. A. Rickenbrode. The report was excellent and elaborate and told of some excellent work along civic lines that has been accomplished in the district, especially by the St. Joseph clubs, account of which may be given later.

Below are some paragraphs from Miss Stanley's address that will prove interesting to homekeepers:

Our homes should be the centers of happiness, not just work shops, not the place where we eat and sleep and dress, or, as a Chicago student defined it, the place where are kept his other suit of clothes. It should be the happiest place on the earth to each of us. How many husbands and children go out on the streets, to the neighbors', to the club, because the house mother has been so busy attending to the material things that she has neglected the happiness. There is all too little happiness in the world. Let us conserve it more carefully. Let us make more of it.

Not only do we want more happiness but a greater capacity for happiness. How many people are unhappy because they have not been taught to enjoy the simple things of life. A constant round of pleasure is necessary for their happiness. Cannot the child be taught in the home the dignity of labor, the joy which comes through his own efforts.

Ask any public spirited man what is the most important question which faces the American public today and I think he will answer without hesitation, "Conservation." The calling of the first conservation congress by Roosevelt in 1908 and the subsequent survey of our national resources has brought most clearly before the American people the fact that our national wealth is not inexhaustible. If future generations come to live on this continent of ours some thought must be taken for them. Not only that, but for some of us now it availeth but little if the material things we need are plentiful when the price is beyond our reach.

But what does conservation mean and for what does it stand?

According to Gifford Pinchot, the central thing for which conservation stands is to make this country of ours the best possible place to live in, both for us and for our descendants. It stands against the waste of natural resources which cannot be renewed, such as coal and iron; it stands for the perpetuation of the resources which can be renewed, as forests and food producing soil, and, most of all, it stands for every American citizen getting his fair share of benefit from these resources, both now and hereafter. It stands for prudence and foresight rather than reckless blindness. It stands for fairness in distribution of benefits and prices within the reach of all.

Conservation has a two-fold meaning—production on the one hand, consumption on the other. Let us take an illustration from each of the above groups.

In considering that wealth which we dig from the earth we have no means of producing more. Our efforts must be limited to the [illegible]de of controlling the economic use of that which we have. With our water power it is almost inexhaustible. We cannot use it up, but it is flowing along uselessly. We cannot harness it up. It must be developed. But conservation steps up and says it must be developed for the use of all and not for the use of a few.

* * *

The most shameful lack of conservation is shown in many of the houses we see built. Houses are built to rent not to live in. This means the builder wants to realize as much money as possible and as soon as possible. He does not consider the occupant nor does he look forward for a few years to see what the ultimate outcome of his own investment is to be. The house, to all appearances, is desirable, but shortly commences that condition of gradual decay which means a shifting tenant and eventually a vacant house. If the conservation of our lumber is important, should we allow it to be used up in the construction of houses so short lived as these? And is not much of this cheap construction due to the effort to make things appear what they are not? The money which should go into better quality of material and better workmanship has been put oftentimes into gingerbread work, fancy mirrors and an unnecessary number of rooms, which are opened perhaps for company.

Furniture has followed in the steps of house construction. The cheap, flimsy, muchly-carved furniture which we usually find its a disgrace to the taste of womankind, and soon follows in the steps of the cheap house which they furnish. We can well demand a moderate priced article, but let us balance up values well. Much of the flimsy furniture, carpets and draperies bought are from an economic standpoint a poor investment.

Adulteration of fabrics is another question about which women should be intelligent. When this adulteration decreases the life of a fabric we have a right to demand that it be stopped. And when women cease to buy these adulterated fabrics they will cease to be put on the market. Is not this adulteration after all simply the only solution the manufacturer has had to the problem of furnishing a material cheap enough, and at the same time sufficiently attractive to meet the demands of a constantly changing fashion.

* * *

"Everything which you waste increases the price of that article very, very slightly for every other person, some of whom cannot afford to pay more. But when these little wastes and these very minute increase are multiplied a thousand fold, is not the difference sufficient to help, at any rate account, for the increased cost of living and the underfed slum child?" These are the words of an economist I heard lecture last Christmas time."

VANCE WAS FINED $10.

Brought Up Before Justice Morris On Charge of Common Assault.

AS TO ANNEXATION

SPEAKER CLARK REPLIES TO THE REPUBLIC'S EDITORIAL.

FACTS NOT ALL GIVEN

He Cites Record to Show He Has Been Misquoted—Rests Case on Sober Judgment of Missourians.

Strong disapproval of Champ Clark's annexation-of-Canada speeches and interviews has drawn from the speaker to the St. Louis Republic a letter in which he says that he favored only a peaceful annexation brought about by the mutual consent of both countries, and that he has so qualified all his expressions favoring annexation.

Speaker Clark's letter follows:

In view of your editorial in today's Republic entitled "Champ Clark's Blunders," I desire to make a plain statement.

You, of course, did not know how the remarks touching the annexation of Canada came to be made at Fremont, Neb. Without inquiry from me you assume that they were part of a speech which I had prepared. The truth is that I was speaking on the tariff when a standpat Republican broke in with the question, "What about annexing Canada?" I answered somewhat as reported; but the reporter failed to say that I stated then and there that the only annexation I had ever thought of was a union of the two countries by mutual consent and for the promotion of the best interests of the two countries.

You assume that in my speech in the house, as well as at Fremont, I suggested or advocated forcible annexation. There is not a fact in the universe on which to base that assumption. I never dreamed of such a thing, and the language of the speech in congress flatly contradicts the assumption. President Taft's claquers * * * undertook to make a mountain out of a mole hill by jumping on me in the papers, and certain Democratic papers fell in with them.

All these papers which assailed me assumed falsely that I was advocating forcible annexation, and every one of them knew, or could have known, by the simple expedient of reading my speech, that their assumption had no basis of fact, and that the reasons which I gave for desiring to see a union of the two countries were of the friendliest and most pacific sort—such as kinship in blood, a common language and great similarity of our institutions. * * * I have always advocated reciprocity, not with Canada alone, but with all commercial nations. * * *

I have been grossly misrepresented from the beginning in this matter, partly through ignorance, partly through malice and partly to prop the waning fortunes of the standpatters.

A few days ago you criticised me for a statement about enforcing the criminal features of the anti-trust law. Your criticism was based on the assumed fact that I said that if the criminal features of the anti-trust law had been enforced during the last two years there would not be a trust in America today. I never said two years, the thing on which you based your criticism. As a matter of fact, I said ten years, which really made some considerable difference, as ten years embrace the period during which the trusts have been most active.

If you would inquire I am inclined to the opinion that I had a good deal to do with getting the reciprocity bill through the houses of both the sixty-first and sixty second congresses.

It seemed to me that whether I am a candidate for president or a candidate for no office whatsoever, I am entitled to fair treatment, and I believe that the people of Missouri will think so ,too. I have served them faithfully for twenty years and have absolute confidence in their good sense and inherent love of justice. I have rendered the state some service, which in certain quarters seems to be the head and front of my offending. I brought to Missouri the honor of the greatest office ever held by any of her sons, native or adopted, and I am willing to be judged on my record by the good people of Missouri.

Mrs. L. T. DeVore of near Ravenwood was in the city Wednesday. She was accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. H. Clifton Carnagey of Pierre, S. D., who arrived Tuesday night for a visit until Christmas with her mother Mr. Carnagey will come Christmas to accompany her home.

COURT ON MONDAY

NOVEMBER TERM TO CONVENE WITH JUDGE ELLISON ON BENCH.

NOT A LARGE DOCKET

And Only a Few Cases of Importance Will Be Tried—Fourteen Divorce Cases On the Docket.

The November term of circuit court will meet next Monday, with Judge W. C. Ellison on the bench. The docket for this term is not a large one, having about the average number of cases.

One noticeable feature about this term of court will be that there are only a few cases of importance that will be tried. Many suits for damages against railroads will come up. There are fourteen divorce cases on the docket set for Friday and Saturday, November 17 and 18.

The parole docket will be taken up Monday.

FIRST GAME WITH TARKIO.

Normal Basket Ball Team to Play Them November 16.

The local basket ball season involving outside teams will open when the Normal quintet meets the fast Tarkio high school team at the Normal gymnasium on Thursday night, November 16. Although Coach Moore will not pick the first team until after the opening of the winter quarter, he is of the opinion that he can pick a sufficiently strong team to "mop up" on the Tarkio five, without much previous thought. Of last year's team there will be Mitchell, McGrew and Perrin, who will try out for the first team. The Seymour brothers, former Fairfax stars, will also be strong contenders for first team berths. It has been reported that Vandersloot, the captain of last year's high school team, who were the champions of the city, will enter school at the beginning of the winter quarter. He would greatly strengthen the squad. Also Hogan, the star center of the '09 high school team, will attend the winter quarter to get some credits preparatory to entering the state university. He was picked for center on the all-city team last year, and should he show up any of his old time class the center problem would be practically solved. Coach Moore has reasons to believe that this year's team will compare well with any of the college teams of the state.

Home Economics Demonstration.

Those visitors who were fortunate enough to be present at the advanced domestic science class at the Normal Wednesday were furnished a treat in the demonstration by Miss Bertha Beal, a member of the advanced class. The public is invited to attend these demonstrations, which take place about three times a week, beginning at 10:30 o'clock, which is the period just following the chapel hour.

EVEN BLACKBIRD HAS SENSE

He Limits His Hours of Labor as Strictly as Any Union Workman.

There's some common sense even in a blackbird. A small army of those dusky feathered fliers have been demonstrating each day that they observe hours of labor just as strictly as any workman in town.

Living in the big aged trees on Bethany College campus are thousands of these blackbirds. Each night they perch in the topmost branches of these trees. Each morning at daybreak they leave their homes and fly in great numbers to the east side of the city. There they remain all day, doing their work of gaining a living in the fields at the outskirts of town.

But they don't work overtime, not these birds. Each evening at exactly six o'clock the leaders fly west to their homes at Bethany grounds again. The leaders are followed by hundreds of other birds of the black wing. They fly in a straight line several blocks in length. Many persons in Topeka have been watching the birds for some time and have observed that they never fail to return from their day's work at the same time each evening.—Topeka Capital.

Sufficiently Permanent.

Mrs. Cameron was seventy-two years old, but she was so well-preserved that there seemed no reason to think that her days might not be lengthened to reach the family standard—over eighty-five.

When her trusty maid of all work fell ill, Mrs. Cameron, saying that she should pension the faithful Nancy, set about to obtain another. She advertised for a girl who wished a "permanent place," and offered high wages. The first applicant was a grim Scotchwoman, who looked Mrs. Cameron over, and then spoke her mind.

"You're well-favored, ma'am," she said, "but you're fair old for a' that, an' I'm lookin' for a pairmanency."

"You stay here till after my funeral," said Mrs. Cameron, with an appreciative twinkle in her eye, "and see if it hasn't been pretty permanent."

"Aweel, I'll try it," said the woman, after another survey of her future mistress; and she held her "pairmanency" for fifteen years, at the end of which time she attended the funeral of her mistress, and after it learned that a goodly sum had been left to "my cautious Tina," on the receipt of which she retired from active service.—Youth's Companion.

Mrs. T. J. Tobin of Burlington Junction visited in the city Wednesday with her mother, Mrs. John Vaughn.

Charles Mow and nephew, Norval Lyle of near Ravenwood were transacting business in the city Wednesday.

M. Ray and Mrs. John Mahoney were visiting Tuesday their children, Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Ray of near Clyde.

TRAP OF HIS BOYHOOD DAYS

One of the Familiar Sort Set by Lads Awakes Reminiscences of City Man.

"I used to set traps like that," this man said, referring to one which some boys had set up in a city street to catch sparrows.

It was a small wooden box turned bottom side up and set at the outer edge of the sidewalk with one end lifted and supported on a stick. One end of the stick was on the sidewalk and the other end under the box edge. The boys put some oats on the sidewalk under the box, and to the supporting stick there was attached a string leading across the sidewalk to the house area, the boys' lair. When the sparrows came under the box to get the oats you pulled the string and twitched the stick out and down came the box to trap the sparrows under it. Or that was the idea.

"Just like that," this man went on. "That's a time-honored sort of trap. We didn't have any sparrows then; what we used to try to catch was pigeons, doves, and we used a bigger box, a soapbox, and what we used to put under it was bread crumbs.

"Time and again I've set up such a trap in a street where pigeons used to come around and baited it and then got off somewhere holding the string and waited for the pigeons to walk under the box so I could trap 'em.

"And the pigeons would come and they'd walk around the box and pick up things all around it and sometimes they'd get so close that I was sure they were going under and then I'd crouch down, all keyed up, ready to pull and get 'em, but somehow they generally stopped right at the edge, or if one got under and I pulled the string the pigeon was always sure to get away before the box came down.

"I don't know just how it was, but I never caught a pigeon. I guess it will be about the same here now with these boys trying to catch sparrows, but it's a lot of fun to set the trap and try."

WOMAN REFORMER IN EGYPT

Several Improvements Urged by Bahisat-Al-Badia Are Now Laws in That Country.

Bahisat-al-Badia is said to be the most popular woman of her race in Egypt. She has taken part in various movements to help Egyptian women. At a recent congress she delivered an address setting forth the needs of the Mohammedan women and calling on the members of the congress to support laws to help them. The congress voted in favor of six of the reforms she proposed—that every girl should receive a common school education, that in every school there should be an educated woman to teach the girls good manners and the rudiments of religion, that as soon as practical a university school should be established for women, that a physician and a nurse to aid women in childbirth should be maintained in every city and village, that special schools be established where girls should be taught housekeeping and the care of children and that the hiring of women to stand about a bier and beat their heads and faces at funerals forbidden.

When Bahisat-al-Badia proposed that the women of Egypt should be allowed to attend the mosque, pointing out that this privilege had been enjoyed by Turkish women for years, there was an uproar in the congress. When she tried to have the question of polygamy discussed there was a great tumult, every member of the congress objecting.—Detroit Free Press.

How England Grows.

A great deal of interest is taken in England in the question of coast protection. The ocean, assailing the cliffs, gradually tears them away, but this very process furnishes a defense for the land by building up long beaches of sand and shingle which arrest the waves before they can attack the cliffs. An effort is making to prevent or better regulate, the removal of this material for construction and road building, because in many places its removal has permitted the sea freely to exert its power of erosion.

The Ordinance Survey has ascertained that in the last thirty-five years England has lost 6,000 acres by sea erosion, and gained 48,000 acres through reclaiming land the existence of which is mainly due to material brought down by the rivers.—From the Youth's Companion.

Her Father an Authority.

Little Nellie told smaller Anita what she termed a "little fib."

Anita—A fib is the same as a story, and a story is the same as a lie.

Nelly—No, it's not.

Anita—Yes it is, because my father said so, and my father is a professor at the university and he knows.

Nelly—I don't care if he is. My father is a real estate man, and he knows more about lying in a minute than your father does in a week!

Overworked Words.

"Strenuous" was a good word before it was overworked. So with "impeccable" until it became unbearable; also "banal," which is now banal and nothing else through threadbare usage. What superiority do these possess over the rural stock phrases of "in our midst," or "whilst going to Turkey Run last Thursday" or "all partook heartily of a bountiful repast?"—Washington Post.

MINE ACCIDENT BURIES SIX MEN

Women and Children Sing Hymns of Praise Over Rescue.

HOPPER COLLAPSED ON SHAFT

Concrete Blocked Work of Relief and Rising Water Threatened Entombed Men With Drowning.

Joplin, Mo., Nov. 8.—Several hundred miners, women and children, stood with bared heads around the mouth of the shaft of the Needmore mine at Oronogo, 12 miles from Joplin, and clasping hands sang fervently "Come, Thou Fount of Every Blessing." They were rejoicing because six men had just been saved when their chance to live was at zero. The six men were buried underground all afternoon.

At 2 o'clock the large hopper of the Needmore mill, a new building, crushed the concrete pillars on which it stood and fell on top of the shaft, carrying wood, machinery and rocks with it. The six men caught in the ground were Tom Guthrie, ground boss; Raymond James, Perl Althouse, Bob Ellis, Alphus Geahart and Aleck House, widely known miners of the central district.

It was known that the men in the ground were working a small new drift opened on the 130-foot level. Word was sent to surrounding properties and before long 200 miners were feverishly trying to remove the rock and debris that choked up the shaft. It was not known how much the shaft was blocked, but it was certain that unless the men in the ground were soon extricated, water rising in the mine would drown them. It was estimated that the water was creeping up at the rate of three feet an hour.

Soon the pump shaft was open sufficiently to permit its use as a speaking tube. The men in the ground announced that they were safe, but to hurry up before the water gained on them. They had gone to a piece of higher ground that gave them a little advantage. The men working on top of the ground removed the debris with shovels. When a boulder was too large for handling otherwise, chains and horses were used, or dynamite broke it into small pieces.

At 3:15 it was found that a large piece of the concrete pillar had caught in the shaft and prevented much of the debris from going to the bottom. Just how to get it out was a big problem, but when this was accomplished at 4 o'clock the men were extricated.

The Needmore is owned by the Oronogo Mining and Development company, working on the Branby land northeast of the Oronogo circle mine. It is believed that the concrete pillars were defective.

MISSOURI IS GROWING RAPIDLY

First Figures Under New Vital Statistics Law Shows Gain of Over 6,000 in Three Months.

Jefferson City, Nov. 8.—A compilation by the secretary of the state board of health, or state registrar, shows that in April, May and June there were 16,807 births and 10,202 deaths in Missouri. These are the first reliable figures obtained under the vital statistics law enacted by the assembly.

The bulletin just issued by the state board indicates that pneumonia caused more deaths in Missouri than any other disease. In January, February and March, 1911, more than 18 per cent of all deaths were due to pneumonia.

In July 1,028 children less than 5 years old died in Missouri chiefly from faulty feeding, bad milk and such causes.

Missionary Row Spreads.

Topeka, Nov. 8.—Four bishops of the Methodist Episcopal church are in Topeka to investigate the row in the Woman's Missionary society of the church, which culminated a few days ago in a suit for libel brought by Mrs. Carrie Cope of Topeka against Mrs. George O. Robinson of Detroit, president of the national society organization. Gov. Stubbs and John S. Dawson, attorney general, have both been brought into the controversy, which grew out of the disposition of $10,000 left to the Kansas society by Mrs. Fannie Murray.

Poured Liquor in Creek.

Leavenworth, Kan., Nov. 8.—A thousand bottles of beer, 300 jugs and 500 bottles of whiskey were destroyed by Sheriff Larkin in the yard of the Leavenworth county jail. The liquor was confiscated in the recent raids by Attorney General Dawson and his assistants.

New Form in Manhattan.

Manhattan, Kan., Nov. 8.—The commission form of government was adopted here by a vote of 410 to 182. It was the lightest vote ever polled in this city. No fight was made against the proposition.

SIX COUNTIES ELECT TAGGART

Received Vote of Every County but Three in Second Kansas District.

ELECTION RESULTS ELSEWHERE

Vote in Several States and Cities Surprising—Ten Ohio Cities Show Socialist Majorities—Tamany Losing Power.

Kansas City, Kan., Nov. 8.—A light vote in the Second Kansas district resulted in the election of Joseph Taggart, Democrat, over U. S. Guyer, Republican, by a majority of 800 to 1,200.

Mr. Taggart carried six counties in the district, losing three, Franklin, Johnson and Linn. The vote is a complete reversal of the election last year in the Second district, when A. C. Mitchell was elected by a majority exceeding 3,000.

Mr. Taggart is the first Democratic representative elected from the Second district since 1896, when Mason Peters was elected upon the free silver issue.

The results of the election by counties according to the unofficial returns received at both party headquarters is as follows:

County—	Maj. for Taggart.	Maj. for Guyer.
Wyandotte	561	...
Johnson	...	35
Franklin	...	60
Allen	276	...
Bourbon	132	...
Linn	...	148
Miami	200	...
Anderson	142	...
Douglas	104	...
Totals	1,415	243

The scattering returns indicate an increased Socialist vote in every county in the district, and it is probable that the prohibition candidate, M. F. King, polled more than the normal vote of the party.

The election of Mr. Taggart leaves his office as county attorney to be filled by the two district judges of Wyandotte county, Judge E. L. Fischer of the First division is a Democrat, while Judge Frank D. Hutchings is a Republican. It is believed that James M. Meek, first deputy county attorney under all three of Mr. Taggart's administrations, will be chosen, although neither of the district judges would discuss the matter.

Elections held in many states and cities throughout the country resulted in the election of Democratic governors in Massachusetts, Kentucky and Mississippi, Republican governor in Rhode Island, a Republican assembly to New York, a New Jersey legislature with majorities probably not in accord with Gov. Woodrow Wilson of that state, with results of the state elections in Maryland and New Mexico still in doubt.

Summary.

Kentucky—Democrats have landslide; McCreary elected governor by 25,000 to 40,000.

Cleveland, O.—Democrats elect city ticket, save five councilmen; mayoralty plurality 18,000.

San Francisco—Labor party loses majority of supervisors, but race for district attorney is in doubt.

Massachusetts — Foss, Democrat, probably will be elected, but vote is very close.

Columbus, O.—George J. Karb, Democrat, elected by 5,000. Socialists in close race for second place.

New Jersey—Both branches of legislature probably Republican. Woodrow Wilson's men defeated.

Nebraska—State ticket Republican. Democrat elected to congress.

Ohio—Three big cities Democratic, ten others Socialist.

Rhode Island—General Republican victory.

Philadelphia — Reform candidate, Blackenburg, elected and Republican party defeated.

DR. KNABE'S DEATH SUICIDE

DETECTIVE BURNS GIVES REASONS FOR OPINION.

Says There is No Mystery About It And Murder or Assault is Out of Question.

Indianapolis, Nov. 8.—After making a study of the facts connected with the death of Dr. Helene Knabe, Detective W. J. Burns said while in Indianapolis that the most logical conclusion is that the woman committed suicide, the most likely cause being unrealized professional ambition. Mr. Burns was familiar with every detail connected with Dr. Knabe's death and, after reviewing all of them, he averred that he could not understand why there should be any mystery connected with the death.

"If it was a murder there must have been a motive," said Mr. Burns. "The police have disproved the theory of robbery, the doctors have disproved the theory of assault, and the high character of the woman has disproved any possible theory of a clandestine meeting. The body lay on the bed undisturbed from the position in which the doctor lay after retiring. When the body was found in the morning by Miss McPherson the light was burning. It is not customary for a murderer to commit his crime in the open light with the window shades up and in full view from the lighted street. A murderer does not have a brass band. He would not have deliberately killed this woman, placed the knife in his pocket and quietly departed from the building in full view of a window where the shades were up and a light burning."

Mr. Burns declared there is no positive proof that any outcry was heard in the night, and every other theory of murder has been set aside by the actual facts connected with the death.

LOW PRICE FOR POSTAL BONDS

First Issue Brought But 92½ Cents—Less Than Dealers Had Expected.

New York, Nov. 8.—The first sale of United States government 2½ per cent bonds, issued through the postal savings banks department, has just been made on the market here, the bonds bringing only 92½ cents. It was realized by bankers from the time that the first of these postal savings bonds were issued, that they would not be worth par, but the sale at 92½ cents has put a lower valuation on them than some government bond dealers expected.

It thus appears that the small depositor who takes bonds at par must hold his bonds until maturity, 20 years hence, or, if forced to realize on his holdings, must accept a heavy loss on his principal. For example, the holder of $200 of these 2½ per cent bonds who bought them last July for $200, has now sold the mfor $185, suffering a loss of 7½ per cent of the principal invested four months ago. Bankers declare that it will be necessary for the government to adopt some change whereby the parity of these bonds may be maintained.

Nine Injured in a Wreck.

Ironton, Mo., Nov. 8.—Train No. 6, northbound, on the St. Louis, Iron Mountain & Southern railroad, was wrecked at Arcadia by a broken rail. Six cars, including three Pullmans, were derailed. Nine passengers were injured. One coach was turned completely over and it was necessary to liberate the passengers by chopping a hole in the top of the car. D. J. Hutchins, train auditor, of St. Louis, is probably fatally injured. His face and forehead are crushed.

Clean Cars for the Millers.

Topeka, Nov. 8.—The complaint brought by millers against the Kansas railroads asking the public utilities commission to compel the railroads to clean out all grain cars before loading or to cover the floors and sides of the cars with paper will be dismissed. The railroads and millers have reached an agreement whereby the railroads will allow 80 cents a car for cleaning grain cars for shipment.

Courts in Conflict.

Indianapolis, Nov. 8.—When Judge A. B. Anderson of the United States District court was advised that the federal grand jury had been denied access to certain books of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers he ordered the United States marshal to go to a trust company where the books were deposited and take possession of them.

Serious Situation at Nanking.

Nanking, China, Nov. 8.—The viceroy at Nanking has committed suicide. The situation is serious. The viceroy's instructions from Peking had ordered him not to resist the revolutionists by force but to surrender. The Tartar general commanding the Manchu troops refused to obey these orders. A condition of panic prevails.

Abilene, Kan., Nov. 8.—Fraternities and sororities are to be barred from the Abilene High schools. After a long session the board of education instructed the superintendent of schools to dissolve the girls' society, the Gamma Gammas, and the boys' society, the Beta Pi.

WU TING FANG JOINS REBELS

Valuable Recruit for Revolutionary Party.

DIRECTOR OF FOREIGN AFFAIRS

Gives Out Statement Announcing Policy of New Government Toward Foreign Business and Property Interests.

Shanghai, Nov. 8.—Dr. Wu Ting Fang, who has been chosen director of foreign affairs in the reform government established by the revolutionists in the Province of Kiang-Su, gave out a statement in which he announced his adherence to the movement designed to establish a Republican form of government in China.

Dr. Wu Ting-fang has twice occupied the office of Chinese minister to the United States, in which duty he became widely known.

At his residence within the foreign settlement of Shanghai Dr. Wu outlined the plans and hopes of the reformers of China. Wen Tsung Yao, formerly imperial resident at Lhasa, Tibet, who has been appointed assistant director of foreign affairs in the new government, was present when the statement was made.

Dr. Wu said that while he was loath to accept office and hesitated because of his former close connection with the Manchu government he was now practically forced to aid the cause of China. He announced that Cheng Te-Chuan, the governor at Soo Chow and formerly governor at Mukden, who was the first governor to come over to the reformers, had been elected governor of the entire province of Kiang Su.

Cheng Te-Chuan, he said, was a strong man and would be able to control the revolutionists and guarantee order and the safety of foreigneers. Ninety per cent of the population, he said, was supporting the present status. Dr. Wu continued:

"Personally I favored a limited monarchy, retaining the emperor as a figurehead, with a strong Chinese cabinet and constitution, but the prevailing sentiment appears to favor a republic.

"In each province a governor will be selected, each city and town giving its allegiance to the new government. The whole people of China, north and south, are united against Manchu supremacy and the government at Pekin, which is corrupt and prone to be oppressive.

"I admit there are tremendous difficulties before us, but we must win. We guarantee an adherence to foreign treaties whether they were made unfairly or fairly. We will pay our obligations to foreign nations and open up all the ports of China to foreign trade. Thus will be guaranteed an enormous advantage to all foreigners as well as to China."

Dr. Wu said that he fully understood the reform movement might lead in any direction, even to anarchy; but all the people of China were now prepared to show the world the real power of the Chinese for orderly conduct, self restraint and loyalty to a fair and honest government.

After the unveiling the presidential party spent some time in sight seeing and left at 4:15 for Louisville, where he will be the guest of the city. Later he will entrain for Hodgenville and motor to the Lincoln farm, where the $125,000 Lincoln memorial will be dedicated on the second day of the celebration.

Keep the kidneys well and they will keep you well. Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys and keep them well. Can Maryville readers demand further proof than the following statement:

Mrs. W. M. Newman, Chestnut street, Savannah, Mo., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills have been of more benefit to me than any other kidney remedy I have ever used, and in view of this fact, I willingly recommend them. I was caused much suffering by pains in my shoulders, and mornings on arising I felt tired and languid. I was also bothered by the kidney secretions. GRAY HAIR MAKES YOU LOOK OLD

A Simple Remedy Brings Back the Natural Color—Dandruff Quickly Removed.

How often one hears the expression, "She is gray and beginning to look old." It is true that gray hair usually denotes age and is always associated with age. You never hear one referred to as having gray hair and looking young.

The hair is generally the index of age. If your hair is gray, you can't blame your friends for referring to you as looking old. You can't retain a youthful appearance if you allow your hair to grow gray. Many persons of middle age jeopardize their future simply by allowing the gray hair to become manifest. If your hair has become faded or gray, try Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy a preparation which a chemist by the name of Wyeth devised a few years ago. It is simple, inexpensive and practical, and will banish the gray hairs in a few days. It is also guaranteed to remove dandruff and promote the growth of the hair.

It is a pleasant dressing for the hair, and after using it a few days itching and dryness of the scalp entirely disappear.

Don't neglect your hair. Start using Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur today, and you will be surprised at the quick results.

This preparation is offered to the public at fifty cents a bottle and is recommended and sold by all druggists. Special agents, Koch Pharmacy.

FEMALE DIVERS OF JAPAN

Women Who Begin at 13 to Search for Pearls in the Coast Waters.

The pearl divers of Japan are women. Along the coast of the Bay of Ago and the Bay of Kokasho the thirteen and fourteen-year-old girls, after they have finished their primary school work, go to sea and learn to dive.

They are in the water and learn to swim almost from babyhood and spend most of their time in the water except in the coldest season, from the end of December to the beginning of February. Even during the most inclement of seasons they sometimes dive for pearls.

They wear a special dress, white underwear and the hair twisted up into a hard knot. The eyes are protected by glasses to prevent the entrance of water. Tubs are suspended from the waist. A boat in command of a man is assigned to every five or ten women divers to carry them to and from the fishing grounds.

When the divers arrive on the grounds they leap into the water at once and begin to gather oysters at the bottom. The oyters are dropped into tubs suspended from their waists. When the vessels are filled the divers are raised to the surface and jump into the boats. They dive to a depth of from five to thirty fathoms without any special apparatus and retain their breath from one to three minutes.

Their ages vary from thirteen to forty years and between twenty-five and thirty-five they are at their prime. —Oriental Review.

YOUNG BEAVER'S DAY'S WORK

Record Made by One of the Animals in Regent's Park Gardens, London.

A young beaver in Regent's Park gardens, London, was once placed at work upon a tree 12 feet long and 2 feet 6 inches thick just as the town clocks sounded the hour of noon. The beaver began by barking the tree a foot above the ground.

That done he attacked the wood. He worked hard, alternating his labor with dips in his bathing pond. He bathed and labored alternately until 6 o'clock in the afternoon, when he ate his supper of bread and carrots and paddled about in his pond until half-past 5 o'clock.

Ten minutes later, when only one inch of the tree's diameter remained intact, he bore upon his work and the tree fell. Before it fell the beaver ran as men run when they have fired a blast. Then as the tree lay on the ground he portioned it out mentally and again began to gnaw.

He worked at intervals all night, cut the log into three parts, rolled two of the portions into the water and reserved the other third for his permanent shelter. The work done, he took a bath.—Harper's Weekly.

A Cooking Feat in the Air.

To cook a potato pie at the top of a chimney three hundred feet high by means of the heat generated in the fires below would seem an impossible task, yet such a feat was on one occasion accomplished by John Faulkner, a famous Lancashire steeplejack.

The incident was the outcome of a wager between Faulkner and the manager of a Manchester gas works, who doubted John's statement regarding the excessive heat.

A large iron kettle was procured, and this, being filled with necessary ingredients—sixty-six pounds in weight—was hoisted to the summit of the huge chimney stack. Faulkner placed the receptacle on the outer and coolest side of the brickwork, but despite this, the contents were found to be thoroughly cooked in one hour and twenty minutes, or ten minutes less than the stiplated time.

Faulkner won his wager and the pie, which, it is said, was slightly burned at the bottom, was afterwards distributed among the poor of the district.—Bystander.

The Useful Verb "To Get."

There is no word, long or short, in the English language capable of performing so much labor in a clear, intelligible sense as the verb to get; and here is an old-time specimen of its capabilities:

"I got on horseback within ten minutes after after I got your letter. When I got to Canterbury I got a chaise for town; but I got wet through before I got to Canterbury and I have got such a cold as I shall not be able to get rid of in a hurry. I got to the treasury about noon, but first of all I got shaved and dressed. I soon got into the secret of getting a memorial before the board, but I could not get an answer then; however, I got intelligence from the messenger that I should most likely get one the next morning. As soon as I got back to my inn I got my supper. When I got up in the morning I got my breakfast and then got myself dressed that I might get out in time to get an answer to my memorial. As soon as I got it I got into the first chaise and got to Canterbury by 3 o'clock, and about tea time I got home."

Correcting Willie.

Papa and mamma and son Willie were crossing the ocean. Willie had done something for which his mother thought he needed correction, but not feeling equal to the occasion she turned to her husband.

"John," she said, "can't you speak to Willie?"

Papa replied in a thin, weak voice, "Howdy, Willie."—Success Magazine.

HE PLANNED HIS OWN DEATH

How Sir William Hankford 500 Years Ago Evaded Law Against Committing Suicide.

Suicides often adopt ingenious methods, but the art of the felo de se seems not to have advanced materially during the centuries. The modern case of a heavily insured broker who on a feigned hunting trip stood barelegged in a quagmire for hours and wilfully contracted a fatal pneumonia is matched in cleverness by one 500 years old.

The following facts are well vouched for, and indeed were never questioned, says the Green Bag. Sir William Hankford, a judge of the king's bench in the reigns of Edward III, Henry IV, Henry V and Henry VI, and at the time of his death chief justice of England, was a man of melancholy temperament.

He seems to have contemplated suicide the greater part of his long life and during his later years the idea became a fixed purpose. The act was of peculiarly serious consequences in those days for the reason that the law treated it as a capital crime. The offender was buried at the cross roads, with a stake driven through his body, and all his goods and property were forfeited to the crown, to the utter ruin of his family.

Hankford made good use of his wits and succeeded in accomplishing his purpose without incurring either unpleasant penalty. He gave open instructions to his gamekeeper, who had been troubled with poachers in the deer preserve, to challenge all trespassers in the future and to shoot to kill if they would not stand and give an account.

One dark night he purposely crossed the keeper's path, and upon challenge made motions of resistance and escape. The faithful servant, failing to recognise his master, followed instruction to the letter, as was expected of him, and Sir William fell dead in his tracks. The whole truth of the affair was common knowledge, but it was impossible to establish a case of suicide by legal proof. The servant was protected by his instructions. Hankford had honorable burial and his estate passed to those whose interests as heirs he had so wisely considered.

THEIR SINGING HARD LABOR

People of Star Island, Says Celia Thaxter, Grind Out Sounds With Tremendous Exertion.

Among people of average musical ability there is less singing than there used to be. Nearly everybody enjoys singing, and there was a time when nearly everybody was expected, on occasion, to sing. But from different causes—a more exacting standard, the rivalry of the phonograph, and other reasons—amateur singers are fewer than they were. It is a matter for regret from one point of view, and from another for rejoicing.

In a recently published letter, Celia Thaxter tells how some of the Star Island folks, during her long residence at the Isles of Shoals, used to sing.

"Their singing," she declared, "was truly astonishing, indeed, I might say, excruciating. They go at it precisely as if they were sawing wood, and grind out the sounds with such exertion that their faces become crimson and the perspiration stands in beads on their foreheads."—Youth's Companion.

The Iron Crown of Italy.

The historic iron crown of Italy has played a romantic role in the history of the peninsula. It was made in the year 594 by the command, it is said, of Theodolinda, the widow of a Lombard king, on the occasion of her marriage to a duke of Turin.

The crown is of iron overlaid with gilt. Its significance was supposed to lay in the fact that the weight of royalty could never be lightened by its splendid exterior. The iron of the inner portion was traditionally held to be one of the long nails used at the crucifixion.

For a long time the crown was in the keeping of the famous monastery at Monza. In 774 it was brought forth to be placed upon the head of Charlemagne as "King of the Lombards," and on later occasions it figured in the triumphs of Frederic IV and Charles V. Finally in the presence of all the representatives of state, the foreign envoys and princes and officers, Napoleon Bonaparte solemnly united it to the crown of France.

The crown belongs to the state, and the custodian of it is the legitimate representative of the basilica of Monza. The title of "grand custodian," however, pertains to the head of the order of Cavaliers.—Harper's Weekly.

Light of the Firefly.

The statement that the light of fireflies and other phosphorescent animals is produced without any sensible degree of heat has often been repeated without any information as to the quantity of heat that would be required to produce a similar amount of light by artificial methods. This information is supplied by Professor McIntosh. He says that a temperature approaching 2,000 degrees Fahrenheit would be necessary to make a light equivalent to that emitted by an ordinary firefly. The enormous waste in all industrial methods of producing light is a matter of common knowledge, and the example of the firefly remains unimitated by man. The very simplicity of the mechanism employed by nature in phosphorescent animals is baffling. —Harper's Weekly.

GAVE AN ADDRESS

TO THE TWENTIETH CENTURY CLUB TUESDAY AFTERNOON.

ON DOMESTIC SCIENCE

Miss Louise Stanley of State University Was the Speaker—A Reception and Tea in Her Honor.

Miss Louise Stanley, head of the department of home economics of the state univers[illegible] lectured before the Twentieth Century club of this city at the Elks' club Tuesday afternoon, as representative of the Missouri Federation of Women's clubs. Her subject was "Conservation of the Home" and was the best and most comprehensive study of the work and teachings of domestic science that has been heard in our city. Miss Stanley has a doctor's degree from Yale university, which she secured last year, and is a woman of broad culture. Her defense of domestic science as an absolutely necessary part of a woman's education and her explanation for the need of such an education was more than interesting. Several women present, among them Miss Hettie Anthony of the domestic science department of the Northwest Normal, who have heard some of the best economists of the country, regard her address on Tuesday as the best they have heard.

At the close of Miss Stanley's address a reception and tea was given in the tea rooms in honor of the speaker.

The officers of the club, Mrs. J. C. Allender, Mrs. T. L. Wadley, Mrs. S. R Beech and Mrs. G. H. Colbert, were in the receiving line in the reception room, to present the guests to Miss Stanley. Mrs. Ferdinand Townsend and Mrs. George P. Bellows presided at the tea table. They were assisted by Mrs. E. G. Orear, Miss Clara Sturm, Miss Helen Leffler, Miss Bertha Beal, Miss Della Grems and Miss Emma Lee Taylor. The table was centered with a large bouquet of lavender and white chrysanthemums, the club colors. Tea, wafers and bonbons were served.

After the departure of Miss Stanley on the Burlington for her home at Columbia, the club held a business session to hear report of the recent district meeting at Trenton by its representative, Mrs. W. A. Rickenbrode. The report was excellent and elaborate and told of some excellent work along civic lines that has been accomplished in the district, especially by the St. Joseph clubs, account of which may be given later.

Below are some paragraphs from Miss Stanley's address that will prove interesting to homekeepers:

Our homes should be the centers of happiness, not just work shops, not the place where we eat and sleep and dress, or, as a Chicago student defined it, the place where are kept his other suit of clothes. It should be the happiest place on the earth to each of us. How many husbands and children go out on the streets, to the neighbors', to the club, because the house mother has been so busy attending to the material things that she has neglected the happiness. There is all too little happiness in the world. Let us conserve it more carefully. Let us make more of it.

Not only do we want more happiness but a greater capacity for happiness. How many people are unhappy because they have not been taught to enjoy the simple things of life. A constant round of pleasure is necessary for their happiness. Cannot the child be taught in the home the dignity of labor, the joy which comes through his own efforts.

* * *

Ask any public spirited man what is the most important question which faces the American public today and I think he will answer without hesitation, "Conservation." The calling of the first conservation congress by Roosevelt in 1908 and the subsequent survey of our national resources has brought most clearly before the American people the fact that our national wealth is not inexhaustible. If future generations come to live on this continent of ours some thought must be taken for them. Not only that, but for some of us now it availeth but little if the material things we need are plentiful when the price is beyond our reach.

But what does conservation mean and for what does it stand?

According to Gifford Pinchot, the central thing for which conservation stands is to make this country of ours the best possible place to live in, both for us and for our descendants. It stands against the waste of natural resources which cannot be renewed, such as coal and iron; it stands for the perpetuation of the resources which can be renewed, as forests and food producing soil, and, most of all, it stands for every American citizen getting his fair share of benefit from these resources, both now and hereafter. It stands for prudence and foresight rather than reckless blindness. It stands for fairness in distribution of benefits and prices within the reach of all.

Conservation has a two-fold meaning—production on the one hand, consumption on the other. Let us take an illustration from each of the above groups.

In considering that wealth which we dig from the earth we have no means of producing more. Our efforts must be limited to the [illegible]de of controlling the economic use of that which we have. With our water power it is almost inexhaustible. We cannot use it up, but it is flowing along uselessly. We cannot harness it up. It must be developed. But conservation steps up and says it must be developed for the use of all and not for the use of a few.

* * *

The most shameful lack of conservation is shown in many of the houses we see built. Houses are built to rent not to live in. This means the builder wants to realize as much money as possible and as soon as possible. He does not consider the occupant nor does he look forward for a few years to see what the ultimate outcome of his own investment is to be. The house, to all appearances, is desirable, but shortly commences that condition of gradual decay which means a shifting tenant and eventually a vacant house. If the conservation of our lumber is important, should we allow it to be used up in the construction of houses so short lived as these? And is not much of this cheap construction due to the effort to make things appear what they are not? The money which should go into better quality of material and better workmanship has been put oftentimes into gingerbread work, fancy mirrors and an unnecessary number of rooms, which are opened perhaps for company.

Furniture has followed in the steps of house construction. The cheap, flimsy, muchly-carved furniture which we usually find its a disgrace to the taste of womankind, and soon follows in the steps of the cheap house which they furnish. We can well demand a moderate priced article, but let us balance up values well. Much of the flimsy furniture, carpets and draperies bought are from an economic standpoint a poor investment.

Adulteration of fabrics is another question about which women should be intelligent. When this adulteration decreases the life of a fabric we have a right to demand that it be stopped. And when women cease to buy these adulterated fabrics they will cease to be put on the market. Is not this adulteration after all simply the only solution the manufacturer has had to the problem of furnishing a material cheap enough, and at the same time sufficiently attractive to meet the demands of a constantly changing fashion.

* * *

"Everything which you waste increases the price of that article very, very slightly for every other person, some of whom cannot afford to pay more. But when these little wastes and these very minute increase are multiplied a thousand fold, is not the difference sufficient to help, at any rate account, for the increased cost of living and the underfed slum child?" These are the words of an economist I heard lecture last Christmas time."

VANCE WAS FINED $10.

AS TO ANNEXATION

SPEAKER CLARK REPLIES TO THE REPUBLIC'S EDITORIAL.

FACTS NOT ALL GIVEN

He Cites Record to Show He Has Been Misquoted—Rests Case on Sober Judgment of Missourians.

Strong disapproval of Champ Clark's annexation-of-Canada speeches and interviews has drawn from the speaker to the St. Louis Republic a letter in which he says that he favored only a peaceful annexation brought about by the mutual consent of both countries, and that he has so qualified all his expressions favoring annexation.

Speaker Clark's letter follows:

In view of your editorial in today's Republic entitled "Champ Clark's Blunders," I desire to make a plain statement.

You, of course, did not know how the remarks touching the annexation of Canada came to be made at Fremont, Neb. Without inquiry from me you assume that they were part of a speech which I had prepared. The truth is that I was speaking on the tariff when a standpat Republican broke in with the question, "What about annexing Canada?" I answered somewhat as reported; but the reporter failed to say that I stated then and there that the only annexation I had ever thought of was a union of the two countries by mutual consent and for the promotion of the best interests of the two countries.

You assume that in my speech in the house, as well as at Fremont, I suggested or advocated forcible annexation. There is not a fact in the universe on which to base that assumption. I never dreamed of such a thing, and the language of the speech in congress flatly contradicts the assumption. President Taft's claquers * * * undertook to make a mountain out of a mole hill by jumping on me in the papers, and certain Democratic papers fell in with them.

All these papers which assailed me assumed falsely that I was advocating forcible annexation, and every one of them knew, or could have known, by the simple expedient of reading my speech, that their assumption had no basis of fact, and that the reasons which I gave for desiring to see a union of the two countries were of the friendliest and most pacific sort—such as kinship in blood, a common language and great similarity of our institutions. * * * I have always advocated reciprocity, not with Canada alone, but with all commercial nations. * * *

I have been grossly misrepresented from the beginning in this matter, partly through ignorance, partly through malice and partly to prop the waning fortunes of the standpatters.

A few days ago you criticised me for a statement about enforcing the criminal features of the anti-trust law. Your criticism was based on the assumed fact that I said that if the criminal features of the anti-trust law had been enforced during the last two years there would not be a trust in America today. I never said two years, the thing on which you based your criticism. As a matter of fact, I said ten years, which really made some considerable difference, as ten years embrace the period during which the trusts have been most active.

If you would inquire I am inclined to the opinion that I had a good deal to do with getting the reciprocity bill through the houses of both the sixty-first and sixty second congresses.

It seemed to me that whether I am a candidate for president or a candidate for no office whatsoever, I am entitled to fair treatment, and I believe that the people of Missouri will think so too. I have served them faithfully for twenty years and have absolute confidence in their good sense and inherent love of justice. I have rendered the state some service, which in certain quarters seems to be the head and front of my offending. I brought to Missouri the honor of the greatest office ever held by any of her sons, native or adopted, and I am willing to be judged on my record by the good people of Missouri.

Daughter Visiting Her.

Mrs. L. T. DeVore of near Ravenwood was in the city Wednesday. She was accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. H. Clifton Carnagey of Pierre, S. D., who arrived Tuesday night for a visit until Christmas with her mother. Mr. Carnagey will come Christmas to accompany her home.

COURT ON MONDAY

NOVEMBER TERM TO CONVENE WITH JUDGE ELLISON ON BENCH.

NOT A LARGE DOCKET

And Only a Few Cases of Importance Will Be Tried—Fourteen Divorce Cases On the Docket.

The November term of circuit court will meet next Monday, with Judge W. C. Ellison on the bench. The docket for this term is not a large one, having about the average number of cases.

One noticeable feature about this term of court will be that there are only a few cases of importance that will be tried. Many suits for damages against railroads will come up. There are fourteen divorce cases on the docket set for Friday and Saturday, November 17 and 18.

The parole docket will be taken up Monday.

FIRST GAME WITH TARKIO.

Normal Basket Ball Team to Play Them November 16.

The local basket ball season involving outside teams will open when the Normal quintet meets the fast Tarkio high school team at the Normal gymnasium on Thursday night, November 16. Although Coach Moore will not pick the first team until after the opening of the winter quarter, he is of the opinion that he can pick a sufficiently strong team to "mop up" on the Tarkio five, without much previous thought. Of last year's team there will be Mitchell, McGrew and Perrin, who will try out for the first team. The Seymour brothers, former Fairfax stars, will also be strong contenders for first team berths. It has been reported that Vandersloot, the captain of last year's high school team, who were the champions of the city, will enter school at the beginning of the winter quarter. He would greatly strengthen the squad. Also Hogan, the star center of the '09 high school team, will attend the winter quarter to get some credits preparatory to entering the state university. He was picked for center on the all-city team last year, and should he show up any of his old time class the center problem would be practically solved. Coach Moore has reasons to believe that this year's team will compare well with any of the college teams of the state.

Home Economics Demonstration.

Those visitors who were fortunate enough to be present at the advanced domestic science class at the Normal Wednesday were furnished a treat in the demonstration by Miss Bertha Beal, a member of the advanced class. Miss Beal explained and demonstrated the nutritive value of the olive. In the course of her talk Miss Beal made French dressing, olive salad and olive and nut sandwiches which were served to those present. The public is invited to attend these demonstrations, which take place about three times a week, beginning at 10:30 o'clock, which is the period just following the chapel hour.

CONTEST ON FEB. 23

COUNTY SPELLING CONTEST TO BE HELD AT THAT TIME.

GREAT INTEREST IS TAKEN

Prizes Are Offered and Each Township in County Will Be Represented—The Committees.

Arrangements are nearly completed for the county spelling contest to be held in Maryville, on Friday evening, February 23, 1812. The preliminary contests are to be held in the rural school districts two weeks before, at which time three spellers will be selected to represent the district in the township contest. The township spelling bee will then be held a week later, and the three best spellers will represent that township in the county contest.

Great interest is being taken in the contest among the rural school children. In several of the school districts local prizes are offered in the hope that the pulpits will not only take an interest, but will make efforts to win the county prize.

Every township in the county will be represented in the county contest. Polk township is divided in two divisions, north and south.

The winner in the county contest will receive a twenty-dollar gold watch. The second prize is a ten-dollar gold piece; third, $7.50; fourth, $5; fifth, $2.50.

The spelling contest will be held in the high school auditorium. The judges will not be selected by County Superintendent W. M. Oakerson, who is in charge of the contest, until a later date.

The committee for the spelling contest for the various townships in the county, follows:

EVEN BLACKBIRD HAS SENSE

He Limits His Hours of Labor as Strictly as Any Union Workman.

There's some common sense even in a blackbird. A small army of those dusky feathered fliers have been demonstrating each day that they observe hours of labor just as strictly as any workman in town.

Living in the big aged trees on Bethany College campus are thousands of these blackbirds. Each night they perch in the topmost branches of these trees. Each morning at daybreak they leave their homes and fly in great numbers to the east side of the city. There they remain all day, doing their work of gaining a living in the fields at the outskirts of town.

But they don't work overtime, not these birds. Each evening at exactly six o'clock the leaders fly west to their homes at Bethany grounds again. The leaders are followed by hundreds of other birds of the black wing. They fly in a straight line several blocks in length. Many persons in Topeka have been watching the birds for some time and have observed that they never fail to return from their day's work at the same time each evening.—Topeka Capital.

Sufficiently Permanent.

Mrs. Cameron was seventy-two years old, but she was so well-preserved that there seemed no reason to think that her days might not be lengthened to reach the family standard—over eighty-five.

When her trusty maid of all work fell ill, Mrs. Cameron, saying that she should pension the faithful Nancy, set about to obtain another. She advertised for a girl who wished a "permanent place," and offered high wages. The first applicant was a grim Scotchwoman, who looked Mrs. Cameron over, and then spoke her mind.

"You're well-favored, ma'am," she said, "but you're fair old for a' that, an' I'm lookin' for a pairmanency."

"You stay here till after my funeral," said Mrs. Cameron, with an appreciative twinkle in her eye, "and see if it hasn't been pretty permanent."

"Aweel, I'll try it," said the woman, after another survey of her future mistress; and she held her "pairmanency" for fifteen years, at the end of which time she attended the funeral of her mistress, and after it learned that a goodly sum had been left to "my cautious Tina," on the receipt of which she retired from active service.—Youth's Companion.

TRAP OF HIS BOYHOOD DAYS

One of the Familiar Sort Set by Lads Awakes Reminiscences of City Man.

"I used to set traps like that," this man said, referring to one which some boys had set up in a city street to catch sparrows.

It was a small wooden box turned bottom side up and set at the outer edge of the sidewalk with one end lifted and supported on a stick. One end of the stick was on the sidewalk and the other end under the box edge. The boys put some oats on the sidewalk under the box, and to the supporting stick there was attached a string leading across the sidewalk to the house area, the boys' lair. When the sparrows came under the box to get the oats you pulled the string and twitched the stick out and down came the box to trap the sparrows under it. Or that was the idea.

"Just like that," this man went on. "That's a time-honored sort of trap. We didn't have any sparrows then; what we used to try to catch was pigeons, doves, and we used a bigger box, a soapbox, and what we used to put under it was bread crumbs.

"Time and again I've set up such a trap in a street where pigeons used to come around and baited it and then got off somewhere holding the string and waited for the pigeons to walk under the box so I could trap 'em.

"And the pigeons would come and they'd walk around the box and pick up things all around it and sometimes they'd get so close that I was sure they were going under and then I'd crouch down, all keyed up, ready to pull and get 'em, but somehow they generally stopped right at the edge, or if one got under and I pulled the string the pigeon was always sure to get away before the box came down.

"I don't know just how it was, but I never caught a pigeon. I guess it will be about the same here now with these boys trying to catch sparrows, but it's a lot of fun to set the trap and try."

WOMAN REFORMER IN EGYPT

Several Improvements Urged by Bahisat-Al-Badia Are Now Laws in That Country.

Bahisat-al-Badia is said to be the most popular woman of her race in Egypt. She has taken part in various movements to help Egyptian women. At a recent congress she delivered an address setting forth the needs of the Mohammedan women and calling on the members of the congress to support laws to help them. The congress voted in favor of six of the reforms she proposed—that every girl should receive a common school education, that in every school there should be an educated woman to teach the girls good manners and the rudiments of religion, that as soon as practical a university school should be established for women, that a physician and a nurse to aid women in childbirth should be maintained in every city and village, that special schools be established where girls should be taught housekeeping and the care of children and that the hiring of women to stand about a bier and beat their heads and faces at funerals forbidden.

When Bahisat-al-Badia proposed that the women of Egypt should be allowed to attend the mosque, pointing out that this privilege had been enjoyed by Turkish women for years, there was an uproar in the congress. When she tried to have the question of polygamy discussed there was a great tumult, every member of the congress objecting.—Detroit Free Press.

How England Grows.

A great deal of interest is taken in England in the question of coast protection. The ocean, assailing the cliffs, gradually tears them away, but this very process furnishes a defense for the land by building up long beaches of sand and shingle which arrest the waves before they can attack the cliffs. An effort is making to prevent or better regulate, the removal of this material for construction and road building, because in many places its removal has permitted the sea freely to exert its power of erosion.

The Ordinance Survey has ascertained that in the last thirty-five years England has lost 6,000 acres by sea erosion, and gained 48,000 acres through reclaiming land the existence of which is mainly due to material brought down by the rivers.—From the Youth's Companion.

Her Father an Authority.

Little Nellie told smaller Anita what she termed a "little fib."

Anita—A fib is the same as a story, and a story is the same as a lie.

Nelly—No, it's not.

Anita—Yes it is, because my father said so, and my father is a professor at the university and he knows.

Nelly—I don't care if he is. My father is a real estate man, and he knows more about lying in a minute than your father does in a week!

Overworked Words.

"Strenuous" was a good word before it was overworked. So with "impeccable" until it became unbearable; also "banal," which is now banal and nothing else through threadbare usage. What superiority do these possess over the rural stock phrases of "in our midst," or "whilst going to Turkey Run last Thursday" or "all partook heartily of a bountiful repast?"—Washington Post.

MINE ACCIDENT BURIES SIX MEN

Women and Children Sing Hymns of Praise Over Rescue.

HOPPER COLLAPSED ON SHAFT

Concrete Blocked Work of Relief and Rising Water Threatened Entombed Men With Drowning.

Joplin, Mo., Nov. 8.—Several hundred miners, women and children, stood with bared heads around the mouth of the shaft of the Needmore mine at Oronogo, 12 miles from Joplin, and clasping hands sang fervently "Come, Thou Fount of Every Blessing." They were rejoicing because six men had just been saved when their chance to live was at zero. The six men were buried underground all afternoon.

At 2 o'clock the large hopper of the Needmore mill, a new building, crushed the concrete pillars on which it stood and fell on top of the shaft, carrying wood, machinery and rocks with it. The six men caught in the ground were Tom Guthrie, ground boss; Raymond James, Perl Althouse, Bob Ellis, Alphus Geahart and Aleck House, widely known miners of the central district.

It was known that the men in the ground were working a small new drift opened on the 130-foot level. Word was sent to surrounding properties and before long 200 miners were feverishly trying to remove the rock and debris that choked up the shaft. It was not known how much the shaft was blocked, but it was certain that unless the men in the ground were soon extricated, water rising in the mine would drown them. It was estimated that the water was creeping up at the rate of three feet an hour.

Soon the pump shaft was open sufficiently to permit its use as a speaking tube. The men in the ground announced that they were safe, but to hurry up before the water gained on them. They had gone to a piece of higher ground that gave them a little advantage. The men working on top of the ground removed the debris with shovels. When a boulder was too large for handling otherwise, chains and horses were used, or dynamite broke it into small pieces.

At 3:15 it was found that a large piece of the concrete pillar had caught in the shaft and prevented much of the debris from going to the bottom. Just how to get it out was a big problem, but when this was accomplished at 4 o'clock the men were extricated.

The Needmore is owned by the Oronogo Mining and Development company, working on the Branby land northeast of the Oronogo circle mine. It is believed that the concrete pillars were defective.

MISSOURI IS GROWING RAPIDLY

First Figures Under New Vital Statistics Law Shows Gain of Over 6,000 in Three Months.

Jefferson City, Nov. 8.—A compilation by the secretary of the state board of health, or state registrar, shows that in April, May and June there were 16,807 births and 10,202 deaths in Missouri. These are the first reliable figures obtained under the vital statistics law enacted by the assembly.

The bulletin just issued by the state board indicates that pneumonia caused more deaths in Missouri than any other disease. In January, February and March, 1911, more than 18 per cent of all deaths were due to pneumonia.

In July 1,028 children less than 5 years old died in Missouri chiefly from faulty feeding, bad milk and such causes.

Missionary Row Spreads.

Topeka, Nov. 8.—Four bishops of the Methodist Episcopal church are in Topeka to investigate the row in the Woman's Missionary society of the church, which culminated a few days ago in a suit for libel brought by Mrs. Carrie Cope of Topeka against Mrs. George O. Robinson of Detroit, president of the national society organization. Gov. Stubbs and John S. Dawson, attorney general, have both been brought into the controversy, which grew out of the disposition of $10,000 left to the Kansas society by Mrs. Fannie Murray.

Poured Liquor in Creek.

Leavenworth, Kan., Nov. 8.—A thousand bottles of beer, 300 jugs and 500 bottles of whiskey were destroyed by Sheriff Larkin in the yard of the Leavenworth county jail. The liquor was confiscated in the recent raids by Attorney General Dawson and his assistants.

New Form in Manhattan.

Manhattan, Kan., Nov. 8.—The commission form of government was adopted here by a vote of 410 to 132. It was the lightest vote ever polled in this city. No fight was made against the proposition.

SIX COUNTIES ELECT TAGGART

Received Vote of Every County but Three in Second Kansas District.

ELECTION RESULTS ELSEWHERE

Vote in Several States and Cities Surprising—Ten Ohio Cities Show Socialist Majorities—Tamany Losing Power.

Kansas City, Kan., Nov. 8.—A light vote in the Second Kansas district resulted in the election of Joseph Taggart, Democrat, over U. S. Guyer, Republican, by a majority of 800 to 1,200.

Mr. Taggart carried six counties in the district, losing three, Franklin, Johnson and Linn. The vote is a complete reversal of the election last year in the Second district, when A. C. Mitchell was elected by a majority exceeding 3,000.

Mr. Taggart is the first Democratic representative elected from the Second district since 1896, when Mason Peters was elected upon the free silver issue.

The results of the election by counties according to the unofficial returns received at both party headquarters is as follows:

County—	Maj. for Taggart.	Maj. for Guyer.
Wyandotte	561	...
Johnson	...	35
Franklin	...	60
Allen	276	...
Bourbon	132	...
Linn	...	148
Miami	200	...
Anderson	142	...
Douglas	104	...
Totals	1,415	243

The scattering returns indicate an increased Socialist vote in every county in the district, and it is probable that the prohibition candidate, M. F. King, polled more than the normal vote of the party.

The election of Mr. Taggart leaves his office as county attorney to be filled by the two district judges of Wyandotte county, Judge E. L. Fischer of the First division is a Democrat, while Judge Frank D. Hutchings is a Republican. It is believed that James M. Meek, first deputy county attorney under all three of Mr. Taggart's administrations, will be chosen, although neither of the district judges would discuss the matter.

Elections held in many states and cities throughout the country resulted in the election of Democratic governors in Massachusetts, Kentucky and Mississippi, Republican governor in Rhode Island, a Republican assembly to New York, a New Jersey legislature with majorities probably not in accord with Gov. Woodrow Wilson of that state, with results of the state elections in Maryland and New Mexico still in doubt.

Summary.

Kentucky—Democrats have landslide; McCreary elected governor by 25,000 to 40,000.

Cleveland, O.—Democrats elect city ticket, save five councilmen; mayoralty plurality 18,000.

San Francisco—Labor party loses majority of supervisors, but race for district attorney is in doubt.

Sacramento, Cal.—Democrat defeats Socialist for mayor.

Bridgeport, Conn.—Republicans win mayoralty; socialists elect one councilman.

Chicago—Parties divide superior court judgeship; Democrats elect circuit judge.

Salt Lake City—Citizens' ticket defeats "American" party.

Cincinnati — Democratic mayor, Hunt, 5,000 majority.

Virginia—Solidly Democratic; legislature, 120 Democrats, 20 Republicans.

Mississippi — Not a Republican elected.

New York — Legislature Republican; mayors divided; Socialists; Tammany victorious, but by reduced vote.

Massachusetts — Foss, Democrat, probably will be elected, but vote is very close.

Columbus, O.—George J. Karb, Democrat, elected by 5,000. Socialists in close race for second place.

New Jersey—Both branches of legislature probably Republican. Woodrow Wilson's men defeated.

Nebraska—State ticket Republican. Democrat elected to congress.

Ohio—Three big cities Democratic, ten others Socialist.

Rhode Island—General Republican victory.

Philadelphia — Reform candidate, Blackenburg, elected and Republican party defeated.

Can't Get a Right of Way.

St. Joseph, Nov. 8.—Attorneys for the Kansas City, Clay County & St. Joseph railway, the electric line being built from Kansas City to St. Joseph, have so far been unable to make terms for right-of-way at several places in Buchanan county. A petition was filed in the circuit court here asking that commissioners be appointed to appraise and condemn property.

DR. KNABE'S DEATH SUICIDE

DETECTIVE BURNS GIVES REASONS FOR OPINION.

Says There is No Mystery About it And Murder or Assault is Out of Question.

Indianapolis, Nov. 8.—After making a study of the facts connected with the death of Dr. Helene Knabe, Detective W. J. Burns said while in Indianapolis that the most logical conclusion is that the woman committed suicide, the most likely cause being unrealized professional ambition. Mr. Burns was familiar with every detail connected with Dr. Knabe's death and, after reviewing all of them, he averred that he could not understand why there should be any mystery connected with the death.

"If it was a murder there must have been a motive," said Mr. Burns. "The police have disproved the theory of robbery, the doctors have disproved the theory of assault, and the high character of the woman has disproved any possible theory of a clandestine meeting. The body lay on the bed undisturbed from the position in which the doctor lay after retiring. When the body was found in the morning by Miss McPherson the light was burning. It is not customary for a murderer to commit his crime in the open light with the window shades up and in full view from the lighted street. A murderer does not have a brass band. He would not have deliberately killed this woman, placed the knife in his pocket and quietly departed from the building in full view of a window where the shades were up and a light burning."

Mr. Burns declared there is no positive proof that any outcry was heard in the night, and every other theory of murder has been set aside by the actual facts connected with the death.

LOW PRICE FOR POSTAL BONDS

First Issue Brought But 92½ Cents—Less Than Dealers Had Expected.

New York, Nov. 8.—The first sale of United States government 2½ per cent bonds, issued through the postal savings banks department, has just been made on the market here, the bonds bringing only 92½ cents. It was realized by bankers from the time that the first of these postal savings bonds were issued, that they would not be worth par, but the sale at 92½ cents has put a lower valuation on them than some government bond dealers expected.

It thus appears that the small depositor who takes bonds at par must hold his bonds until maturity, 20 years hence, or, if forced to realize on his holdings, must accept a heavy loss on his principal. For example, the holder of $200 of these 2½ per cent bonds who bought them last July for $200, has now sold the mfor $185, suffering a loss of 7½ per cent of the principal invested four months ago. Bankers declare that it will be necessary for the government to adopt some change whereby the parity of these bonds may be maintained.

Nine Injured in a Wreck.

Ironton, Mo., Nov. 8.—Train No. 6, northbound, on the St. Louis, Iron Mountain & Southern railroad, was wrecked at Arcadia by a broken rail. Six cars, including three Pullmans, were derailed. Nine passengers were injured. One coach was turned completely over and it was necessary to liberate the passengers by chopping a hole in the top of the car. D. J. Hutchins, train auditor, of St. Louis, is probably fatally injured. His face and forehead are crushed.

Clean Cars for the Millers.

Topeka, Nov. 8.—The complaint brought by millers against the Kansas railroads asking the public utilities commission to compel the railroads to clean out all grain cars before loading or to cover the floors and sides of the cars with paper will be dismissed. The railroads and millers have reached an agreement whereby the railroads will allow 80 cents a car for cleaning grain cars for shipment.

Courts in Conflict.

Indianapolis, Nov. 8.—When Judge A. B. Anderson of the United States District court was advised that the federal grand jury had been denied access to certain books of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers he ordered the United States marshal to go to a trust company where the books were deposited and take possession of them.

Serious Situation at Nanking.

Nanking, China, Nov. 8.—The viceroy at Nanking has committed suicide. The situation is serious. The viceroy's instructions from Peking had ordered him not to resist the revolutionists by force but to surrender. The Tartar general commanding the Manchu troops refused to obey these orders. A condition of panic prevails.

WU TING FANG JOINS REBELS

Valuable Recruit for Revolutionary Party.

DIRECTOR OF FOREIGN AFFAIRS

Gives Out Statement Announcing Policy of New Government Toward Foreign Business and Property Interests.

Shanghai, Nov. 8.—Dr. Wu Ting Fang, who has been chosen director of foreign affairs in the reform government established by the revolutionists in the Province of Kiang-Su, gave out a statement in which he announced his adherence to the movement designed to establish a Republican form of government in China.

Dr. Wu Ting-fang has twice occupied the office of Chinese minister to the United States, in which duty he became widely known.

At his residence within the foreign settlement of Shanghai Dr. Wu outlined the plans and hopes of the reformers of China. Wen Tsung Yao, formerly imperial resident at Lhasa, Tibet, who has been appointed assistant director of foreign affairs in the new government, was present when the statement was made.

Dr. Wu said that while he was loath to accept office and hesitated because of his former close connection with the Manchu government he was now practically forced to aid the cause of China. He announced that Cheng Te-Chuan, the governor at Soo Chow and formerly governor at Mukden, who was the first governor to come over to the reformers, had been elected governor of the entire province of Kiang Su.

Cheng Te-Chuan, he said, was a strong man and would be able to control the revolutionists and guarantee order and the safety of foreigneers. Ninety per cent of the population, he said, was supporting the present status. Dr. Wu continued:

"Personally I favored a limited monarchy, retaining the emperor as a figurehead, with a strong Chinese cabinet and constitution, but the prevailing sentiment appears to favor a republic.

"In each province a governor will be selected, each city and town giving its allegiance to the new government. The whole people of China, north and south, are united against Manchu supremacy and the government at Pekin, which is corrupt and prone to be oppressive.

"I admit there are tremendous difficulties before us, but we must win. We guarantee an adherence to foreign treaties whether they were made unfairly or fairly. We will pay our obligations to foreign nations and open up all the ports of China to foreign trade. Thus will be guaranteed an enormous advantage to all foreigners as well as to China."

Dr. Wu said that he fully understood the reform movement might lead in any direction, even to anarchy; but all the people of China were now prepared to show the world the real power of the Chinese for orderly conduct, self restraint and loyalty to a fair and honest government.

WHY SO WEAK?

Kidney Troubles May Be Sapping Your Life Away—Maryville People Have Learned This Fact.

When a healthy man or woman begins to run down without apparent cause, becomes weak, languid, depressed, suffers backache, headache, dizzy spells and urinary disorders, kidney weakness may be the cause of it all. Keep the kidneys well and they will keep you well. Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys and keep them well. Can Maryville readers demand further proof than the following statement:

Mrs. W. M. Newman, Chestnut street, Savannah, Mo., says: "Doan's Kidney Pills have been of more benefit to me than any other kidney remedy I have ever used, and in view of this fact, I willingly recommend them. I was caused much suffering by pains in my shoulders, and mornings on arising I felt tired and languid. I was also bothered by the kidney secretions. Hearing Doan's Kidney Pills highly spoken of, I procured a box, and soon after beginning their use I was relieved. Another member of my family has also taken this remedy with satisfactory results."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

GRAY HAIR MAKES YOU LOOK OLD

A Simple Remedy Brings Back the Natural Color—Dandruff Quickly Removed.

How often one hears the expression, "She is gray and beginning to look old." It is true that gray hair usually denotes age and is always associated with age. You never hear one referred to as having gray hair and looking young.

The hair is generally the index of age. If your hair is gray, you can't blame your friends for referring to you as looking old. You can't retain a youthful appearance if you allow your hair to grow gray. Many persons of middle age jeopardize their future simply by allowing the gray hair to become manifest. If your hair has become faded or gray, try Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy, a preparation which a chemist by the name of Wyeth devised a few years ago. It is simple, inexpensive and practical, and will banish the gray hairs in a few days. It is also guaranteed to remove dandruff and promote the growth of the hair.

It is a pleasant dressing for the hair, and after using it a few days itching and dryness of the scalp entirely disappear.

Don't neglect your hair. Start using Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur today, and you will be surprised at the quick results.

This preparation is offered to the public at fifty cents a bottle and is recommended and sold by all druggists. Special agents, Koch Pharmacy.

FEMALE DIVERS OF JAPAN

Women Who Begin at 13 to Search for Pearls in the Coast Waters.

The pearl divers of Japan are women. Along the coast of the Bay of Ago and the Bay of Kokasho the thirteen and fourteen-year-old girls, after they have finished their primary school work, go to sea and learn to dive.

They are in the water and learn to swim almost from babyhood and spend most of their time in the water except in the coldest season, from the end of December to the beginning of February. Even during the most inclement of seasons they sometimes dive for pearls.

They wear a special dress, white underwear and the hair twisted up into a hard knot. The eyes are protected by glasses to prevent the entrance of water. Tubs are suspended from the waist. A boat in command of a man is assigned to every five or ten women divers to carry them to and from the fishing grounds.

When the divers arrive on the grounds they leap into the water at once and begin to gather oysters at the bottom. The oyters are dropped into tubs suspended from their waists. When the vessels are filled the divers are raised to the surface and jump into the boats. They dive to a depth of from five to thirty fathoms without any special apparatus and retain their breath from one to three minutes.

Their ages vary from thirteen to forty years and between twenty-five and thirty-five they are at their prime. —Oriental Review.

YOUNG BEAVER'S DAY'S WORK

Record Made by One of the Animals in Regent's Park Gardens, London.

A young beaver in Regent's Park gardens, London, was once placed at work upon a tree 12 feet long and 2 feet 6 inches thick just as the town clocks sounded the hour of noon. The beaver began by barking the tree a foot above the ground.

That done he attacked the wood. He worked hard, alternating his labor with dips in his bathing pond. He bathed and labored alternately until 4 o'clock in the afternoon, when he ate his supper of bread and carrots and paddled about in his pond until half-past 5 o'clock.

Ten minutes later, when only one inch of the tree's diameter remained intact, he bore upon his work and the tree fell. Before it fell the beaver ran as men run when they have fired a blast. Then as the tree lay on the ground he portioned it out mentally and again began to gnaw.

He worked at intervals all night, cut the log into three parts, rolled two of the portions into the water and reserved the other third for his permanent shelter. The work done, he took a bath.—Harper's Weekly.

A Cooking Feat in the Air.

To cook a potato pie at the top of a chimney three hundred feet high by means of the heat generated in the fires below would seem an impossible task, yet such a feat was on one occasion accomplished by John Faulkner, a famous Lancashire steeplejack.

The incident was the outcome of a wager between Faulkner and the manager of a Manchester gas works, who doubted John's statement regarding the excessive heat.

A large iron kettle was procured, and this, being filled with necessary ingredients—sixty-six pounds in weight—was hoisted to the summit of the huge chimney stack. Faulkner placed the receptacle on the outer and coolest side of the brickwork, but despite this, the contents were found to be thoroughly cooked in one hour and twenty minutes, or ten minutes less than the stiplated time.

Faulkner won his wager and the pie, which, it is said, was slightly burned at the bottom, was afterwards distributed among the poor of the district.—Bystander.

The Useful Verb "To Get."

There is no word, long or short, in the English language capable of performing so much labor in a clear, intelligible sense as the verb to get; and here is an old-time specimen of its capabilities:

"I got on horseback within ten minutes after after I got your letter. When I got to Canterbury I got a chaise for town; but I got wet through before I got to Canterbury and I have got such a cold as I shall not be able to get rid of in a hurry. I got to the treasury about noon, but first of all I got shaved and dressed. I soon got into the secret of getting a memorial before the board, but I could not get an answer then; however, I got intelligence from the messenger that I should most likely get one the next morning. As soon as I got back to my inn I got my supper. When I got up in the morning I got my breakfast and then got myself dressed that I might get out in time to get an answer to my memorial. As soon as I got it I got into the first chaise and got to Canterbury by 3 o'clock, and about tea time I got home."

Correcting Willie.

Papa and mamma and son Willie were crossing the ocean. Willie had done something for which his mother thought he needed correction, but not feeling equal to the occasion she turned to her husband.

"John," she said, "can't you speak to Willie?"

Papa replied in a thin, weak voice, "Howdy, Willie."—Success Magazine.

HE PLANNED HIS OWN DEATH

How Sir William Hankford 500 Years Ago Evaded Law Against Committing Suicide.

Suicides often adopt ingenious methods, but the art of the felo de se seems not to have advanced materially during the centuries. The modern case of a heavily insured broker who on a feigned hunting trip stood barelegged in a quagmire for hours and wilfully contracted a fatal pneumonia is matched in cleverness by one 500 years old.

The following facts are well vouched for, and indeed were never questioned, says the Green Bag. Sir William Hankford, a judge of the king's bench in the reigns of Edward III, Henry IV, Henry V and Henry VI, and at the time of his death chief justice of England, was a man of melancholy temperament.

He seems to have contemplated suicide the greater part of his long life and during his later years the idea became a fixed purpose. The act was of peculiarly serious consequences in those days for the reason that the law treated it as a capital crime. The offender was buried at the cross roads, with a stake driven through his body, and all his goods and property were forfeited to the crown, to the utter ruin of his family.

Hankford made good use of his wits and succeeded in accomplishing his purpose without incurring either unpleasant penalty. He gave open instructions to his gamekeeper, who had been troubled with poachers in the deer preserve, to challenge all trespassers in the future and to shoot to kill if they would not stand and give an account.

One dark night he purposely crossed the keeper's path, and upon challenge made motions of resistance and escape. The faithful servant, failing to recognize his master, followed instruction to the letter, as was expected of him, and Sir William fell dead in his tracks. The whole truth of the affair was common knowledge, but it was impossible to establish a case of suicide by legal proof. The servant was protected by his instructions. Hankford had honorable burial and his estate passed to those whose interests as heirs he had so wisely considered.

THEIR SINGING HARD LABOR

People of Star Island, Says Celia Thaxter, Grind Out Sounds With Tremendous Exertion.

Among people of average musical ability there is less singing than there used to be. Nearly everybody enjoys singing, and there was a time when nearly everybody was expected, on occasion, to sing. But from different causes—a more exacting standard, the rivalry of the phonograph, and other reasons—amateur singers are fewer than they were. It is a matter for regret from one point of view, and from another for rejoicing.

In a recently published letter, Celia Thaxter tells how some of the Star Island folks, during her long residence at the Isles of Shoals, used to sing.

"Their singing," she declared, "was truly astonishing, indeed, I might say, excruciating. They go at it precisely as if they were sawing wood, and grind out the sounds with such exertion that their faces become crimson and the perspiration stands in beads on their foreheads."—Youth's Companion.

The Iron Crown of Italy.

The historic iron crown of Italy has played a romantic role in the history of the peninsula. It was made in the year 594 by the command, it is said, of Theodolinda, the widow of a Lombard king, on the occasion of her marriage to a duke of Turin.

The crown is of iron overlaid with gilt. Its significance was supposed to lay in the fact that the weight of royalty could never be lightened by its splendid exterior. The iron of the inner portion was traditionally held to be one of the long nails used at the crucifixion.

For a long time the crown was in the keeping of the famous monastery at Monza. In 774 it was brought forth to be placed upon the head of Charlemagne as "King of the Lombards," and on later occasions it figured in the triumphs of Frederic IV and Charles V. Finally in the presence of all the representatives of state, the foreign envoys and princes and officers, Napoleon Bonaparte solemnly united it to the crown of France.

The crown belongs to the state, and the custodian of it is the legitimate representative of the basilica of Monza. The title of "grand custodian," however, pertains to the head of the order of Cavaliers.—Harper's Weekly.

Light of the Firefly.

The statement that the light of fireflies and other phosphorescent animals is produced without any sensible degree of heat has often been repeated without any information as to the quantity of heat that would be required to produce a similar amount of light by artificial methods. This information is supplied by Professor McIntosh. He says that a temperature approaching 2,000 degrees Fahrenheit would be necessary to make a light equivalent to that emitted by an ordinary firefly. The enormous waste in all industrial methods of producing light is a matter of common knowledge, and the example of the firefly remains unimitated by man. The very simplicity of the mechanism employed by nature in phosphorescent animals is baffling. —Harper's Weekly.
